

Dear colleagues and friends,

Please help me welcome Averiel Hossley to her new role as the Blueprint for Health Project Administrator. Many of you may already know Averiel as she has been working with the team as the Administrative Assistant for the past six months and heard me introduce her at last week's Executive Committee meeting.

I asked Averiel to share a little bit about herself. She writes:

"In my work for the past six months with the Blueprint for Health as their Administrative Assistant, I have built an adept understanding of the mission and workflows of the team. I am deeply excited to provide leadership and focus during this expansion era of the Blueprint as their new Project Administrator.

I graduated summa cum laude with a BFA from the Memphis College of Art, where I spent my academic career managing complex projects using my proficient approach to visual problem solving. I worked as an ambassador for the leadership program during college, as well as devoted several years to public education for young minds in my community.

I am proud to bring my unique perspective to the crucial projects the Blueprint for Health facilitates. I hope to provide clarity of intention and unity for progress to not only our direct comrades in care, but to every community we aim to serve.

I was born in Burlington and have returned to this beautiful state for the next exciting step in my career, one that I am thrilled to be taking with the Blueprint."

Averiel's email address is averiel.hossley@vermont.gov.

Kind regards,

John
